Reach YES...

Below is a list of school statements that families have heard that may serve to postpone or avoid addressing issues. To assist you, the parent, in advocating for your child's right to an appropriate education, we have assembled possible responses that parents may use to Reach YES!

Remember: Process Denied = Rights Denied

Evaluations

Statement: Another label would not change how we teach your student.

- It should. His education should be based on his unique needs. These needs are determined through evaluation of each area of suspected disability.
- On the other hand, another label might change things. If, through evaluation, the school team can recognize that my child has _____ (fill in the blank: sensory processing disorder, specific learning disabilities, autism, hearing loss, vision impairment, auditory processing disorder, Tourette Syndrome, ADD, FASD, ODD, RAD, etc.), then there might be other strategies or technologies that would be more effective.

Statement: Your student's IQ is too high/too low to qualify for special education.

- My child's IQ may be high/low, however, IQ alone does not determine if she requires special education or related services. Let's do additional testing.
- There are 13 categories in special education. Let's look at each one that might apply to my child.
- Yet, obviously, my child needs some supports and services in order to succeed.
- I suspect my child may have a disability even though he is advancing from grade to grade. This school has a responsibility to locate a child with a disability regardless of the severity of the disability. (34 CFR section 300.111 Child find. See page 20.)
- Yet, my child has not shown a pattern of success in this area, so something needs to change.

Statement: We don't want to label your child.

- I don't particularly want my child labeled either, but in order for my child to benefit from his education he needs help. In order for him to receive that help, my child needs to meet the eligibility criteria of at least one of the disability categories. So I guess in this situation accurately determining my child's disability would benefit him.
- This IEP is confidential. Only the IEP Team, my child's teacher and service providers should have access to the information.
- We don't either, but there still might be some benefit. With accurate identification of my child's disability, we can have appropriate expectations, select applicable strategies, provide appropriate services and supports, seek support from other specialists, and maybe my child can qualify for needed assistance and supports.

Statement: Let's just wait and see if we need to address this.

- Wouldn't it be better to be proactive than reactive? Why wait until she fails and then try to pick up the pieces rather than provide help and allow her to make progress?
- We feel we have already waited, and see a need now. Let's not have a "wait to fail" attitude.
- Let's be proactive, working together to help my child succeed.
- Do you promote driving safely only AFTER a ticket or a collision? Let's prevent some trouble by taking action now to help my child learn.

Statements: Your student has to fail our programs before we would consider evaluating for special services. We need to try all of our programs before we can consider evaluating for special services.

- I suspect my child may have a disability even though he is advancing from grade to grade. This school has a responsibility to locate a child with a disability regardless of the severity of the disability. (34 CFR section 300.111 Child find. See page 20.)
- IDEA does not require trying and failing other programs before evaluating a child suspected of needing special services.
- Your early intervening efforts have not been successful, and the school is not allowed to delay an evaluation or placement.
- Does this policy apply to all children with suspected disabilities? So if a child was involved in some sort of accident over a weekend and became unable to see or hear, would you require the child to try various programs and fail before evaluating the child and providing special education services? If not, then why would you treat a child with a suspected disability any differently?

Statement: Your student is doing just fine academically (or is not failing) and does not need an evaluation for special services.

- I suspect my child may have a disability even though he is advancing from grade to grade.
- This school has a responsibility to locate a child with a disability regardless of the severity of the disability. (34 CFR section 300.111 Child find. See page 20.)
- My child is not successful in these areas outside of academics (for example: mobility, expressive language, social skills, self-help skills), so is in need of supports and services to address it.
- My child is performing at an average level today, only because of our family's expensive/exhaustive efforts outside of the school day. He needs supports and services to have a chance to maintain this pattern of success.

- My child has a right to an evaluation in all areas of suspected disability. We list these suspected areas, ___ and ___, which could fall into these eligibility categories, ___ and ___.
- I request an independent evaluation at public expense. (For those instances when there is a disagreement with the school's evaluations on an issue.)

Statement: Your child's delays are not significant enough to qualify for an evaluation.

- I believe my child's delays do significantly impact her education.
- How do you know what the delays are without testing to determine where he's at?
- No, I suspect my child may have a disability, even though he is advancing from grade to grade.
- This school has a responsibility to locate a child with a disability regardless of the severity of the disability. (34 CFR section 300.111 Child find. See page 20.)
- You have admitted that there are areas of delay. Based on the evaluation results, through an IEP or a 504 Plan, let's provide supports, including assistive technology, so that my child cannot just survive, but can thrive and succeed.

Statement: Your child's delays are not significant enough to qualify for special education.

- There is a process available to this team called an "override" that allows a child to be eligible for special education and related services even though he does not meet the criteria set out in the rules. Or, we can support my child with a written plan, such as a 504 or health plan.
- I request an independent evaluation at public expense. (For those instances when there is a disagreement with the school's evaluations on an issue.)

Tool: A Checklist for Evaluation Requests

South Dakota Advocacy Services and South Dakota Parent Connection developed a checklist for parents and educators to use when requesting an evaluation. This checklist will help identify areas of concern and/or reasons for a referral. You may download a copy of the form at www.sdparent.org (How We Help/Resources tabs).

Tool: Sample Letter Requesting An Evaluation

Today's Date (month, day, and year)

Name of Principal or Special Education Administrator
Name of School
Street Address
City, State, Zip Code

Dear (Principal's or Administrator's name),

I am writing to request that my son/daughter, (child's name), be evaluated for special education services. I am concerned about (child's name) performance and progress in school and believe he/she may need special services. (Child's name) is in the (#) grade at (name of school). (Teacher's name) is his/her teacher.

Specifically, I am concerned because (child's name) does/does not... (give a few direct examples of your child's problems at school).

If Applicable: (child's name) has been identified as having (name of disability/disorder) by (name of professional). Enclosed is a copy of the report(s) I have received that describes (child's name) condition.

Optional: We have tried the following to help (child's name): (If you or the school have done anything extra to help your child, briefly state it here).

I understand that I must give written permission in order for (child's name) to be evaluated. If this letter is not sufficient permission to begin the evaluation process, please contact me by phone (number) or email (address) so that you can provide me with the information or documents needed to begin the process. I am requesting copies of all evaluation results and reports prior to the time of the meeting to determine (child's name) eligibility for special education services.

Thank you for your prompt attention to my request.

Sincerely,

Your Signature

Your Name

Your Full Address

Telephone Number(s)

Email Address(es)

cc: your child's principal (if letter is addressed to an administrator)
your child's teacher(s)

NOTE: Send this letter by certified mail or hand-deliver it. If you hand-deliver it, have the receiving school official sign and date a receipt so that you will have documentation of it. Keep a copy for your file.

Extended School Year – ESY

Statement: Your child qualifies for Extended School Year (ESY) services and we will provide _____ (or) ESY will be held _____.

- I recall that last year my child received (for ex.) 20 hours of ESY. This year has been more difficult for him and I feel that he needs more hours.
- How did the school determine the amount of hours/which services my child needs? I am of the understanding that we are to discuss this as an IEP team to determine the individual needs of my child.
- Let's look at my child's relative progress on various goals and determine which are priorities for this summer.

What is ESY?

Extended School Year (ESY) typically relates to the summer months, but can include other breaks, such as at spring or winter. ESY is not intended to introduce new goals, and instead relates to continued efforts on the same annual goals. The IEP document includes Extended School Year, and it must be considered each year for all students with disabilities.

Statement: Your student does not qualify for ESY.

- How have you arrived at your decision? Do you have documentation?
- Can you provide me the documentation, policy, or regulation that proves my child is not eligible for ESY?
- ESY services can be based on documented regression and slow recoupment, a likelihood of significant regression and slow recoupment, to capitalize on emerging skills, or to address critical life skills. Let's review each of these factors to determine if my child qualifies. (See ESY Factors at right.)
- Let's look at the criteria for ESY and decide if her unique needs require ESY.

ESY Can Be Based On Additional Factors Besides Those Listed

- Nature and Severity of Impairment
- Student's Rate of Progress
- Parent's Ability to Provide Educational Structure at Home
- Student's Ability to Interact with Non-Disabled Students
- Curriculum That Requires Continued Attention
- Availability of Alternative Resources
- Break Would Intensify "Interfering Behavior," such as Aggression or Self-Injury
- Vocational Needs

Statement: Your student is too old for ESY.

- I don't remember seeing an age limit for ESY. The determining factors are whether my child will experience significant regression in the absence of an educational program and whether it will take an excessive amount of time to re-learn the skills once my child is back in school, to capitalize on emerging skills, or to address critical life skills. (See Additional ESY Factors on previous page.)
- Show me the regulation that says that.
- There are no age or grade requirements related to ESY. Eligibility is based on my child's needs.
- Really? Is that policy approved by the state Department of Education, Special Education Programs? Can you provide documentation?

Statement: We don't offer summer school in our district.

- We're not asking for summer school, we are asking for needed ESY services. If you cannot arrange appropriate services locally, then the district will need to see where else we can get them.
- You haven't so far, but my child is an individual with an IEP who has a need for ESY services to prevent regression on select goals (or to capitalize on emerging skills or to address critical life skills). If you cannot arrange appropriate services locally, then the district will need to see where else we can get them.
- Have you asked the state Department of Education, Special Education Programs, whether that is a legitimate reason to deny what my child needs?

Individualized Education Plan – IEP

Statement: We don't have the funds/staff to provide that service.

- Services are based on what special education and related services a student needs, not on how much money they cost. I am sorry, but cost/funding is irrelevant.
- All services are based upon the student's special education and related service needs. Cost is not a valid reason to deny FAPE.
- My child needs an individualized program to meet his needs. Even if you don't have staff today, it is your job to provide FAPE, a free and appropriate public education program, which means locating and hiring appropriate staff.
- My child is entitled to a free public education that is delivered in a way that is she can access. My job as a parent is to ensure an appropriate/accessible education is provided to her and your job is to figure out the funding and staffing. I understand that budgets are tight and appreciate you have difficult decisions to make.
- Are you aware of the extraordinary cost fund for special education and is this a possible source for funding?
- How much money does the district keep in reserves? Is this a possible source of funding?
- Does the district levy the full amount for special education? Is this a possible source of funding?

Statement: We don't need to address that issue.

- This issue directly relates to my child's education. It is important to discuss, as an IEP Team, to determine if my child needs ___ to benefit from his education. If you are refusing to discuss this issue, I will need you to put in writing the reasons why. (Refer to "Written Notice of Refused or Tabled Action," page 15.)
- Why? What regulation says that? Please show me the regulation that supports your statement.
- This IEP is based on my child's unique needs. I believe she needs this. Let's talk about it as a team.

- We are members of the team and we consider it an issue. The topic is on the table for discussion. If you are refusing to discuss it, please write down the reasons why. (Refer to "Written Notice of Refused or Tabled Action," page 15.)
- I request an independent evaluation at public expense. (For those instances when there is a disagreement with the school's evaluations on an issue.)

Statement: We don't need to write that into the IEP.

- All of my child's teachers and anyone else that works with my child during the school day is responsible for reading and implementing the IEP. The IEP will let each person know what their specific responsibility is and what services they must provide to my child. If the information is not written into the IEP, then I don't believe the service will be provided. So to prevent any miscommunications or misunderstandings, let's write everything we determined my child needs into the IEP.
- Let's write it down so we all remember what we agreed upon.
- There may be a substitute in the classroom, and it would be helpful to her.
- If it's not written down, you don't have to do it and my child may be short-changed.
- Maybe you don't need to, but I am a team member, and I want it written down so that it is not forgotten. If it does not fit under any of your headings, then we can utilize the section called "Clarifying Comments." (IEP, page 9)
- I want to be clear -- I am asking that you write it down. If you won't write it into the IEP, then I will write it myself after the meeting and will insist that it be attached.

Statement: We'll take care of it.

- Thank you. Let's write it down so no one forgets.
- Thank you. Please write down the projected date of completion, and let's plan to review progress on this date _____.

Statements: We don't need a _____ (staff member with specific training or credentials, such as a nurse, interpreter, behavior specialist, etc.). Our staff are trained to meet your child's need.

- Please tell me what trainings the staff have participated in which relate to my child's disability. How extensive was the training (2 hours, university course) or what was the extent of the training?
- Staff have not met his needs in the past without special training. Why can the staff meet his needs now?

- Is your staff highly qualified in that area?
- I request an independent education evaluation at public expense to determine his needs. (For those instances when there is a disagreement with the school's evaluation on an issue.)

Parent Tip:

Check Teacher 411 on the SD Department of Education website to determine if your child's teachers are highly qualified. They may have a special education certificate but not have training in the specific content area in which they are teaching your child. <https://apps.sd.gov/applications/de04public/TeacherLookup/TeacherSearch.aspx>

Statements: Your student has to fail our programs before we would consider a more restrictive option. We need to try all of our programs before we consider options such as day, residential or out-of-district placement.

- Please show me your policy on that or provide me a copy.
- Really? Is that policy approved by the state Department of Education, Office of Special Education Programs? Please show me that policy or provide a copy.
- That may be your pattern, but that is not a federal regulation.
- Do you know what it feels like to fail something? Let's consider the most appropriate program to help my child succeed and reach the goals we have agreed on.
- LRE, Least Restrictive Environment, still means "appropriate" for the student.

Statements: Our school can only offer these options for your student and nothing more. Our school has these options and is not required to do anything else.

- Fortunately, IDEA is not a "one size fits all" program. Every decision must be based on a child's unique needs so let's figure out what my child needs and what services will be provided by the school district.
- All services are based upon a student's special education and related service needs. Cost is not a valid reason to deny FAPE.
- IEP services are based on my child's unique needs, not what the school currently has available.
- Through the IEP process we have agreed that my child has these educational goals: ___ and ___. That points to a need for this kind of specialized service ,___.
- If the school does not have the services my child needs, we will need to look at what is available from private providers.

Statement: If we provide this to your student, we will have to provide it to every student.

- Yes, I can see how it would seem unfair if my child has ____ and no other child does. I wish life was fair. If it was, my child wouldn't need any extra help just to keep up with the other kids. The nice thing about the IEP is that the "I" stands for Individual. Each child has different and individual needs. IDEA recognizes this and is ok with allowing eligible children to have extra services and supports.
- All IEP services are based on this student's unique needs. Not all students need this and it isn't required for them.
- This is an INDIVIDUAL education program. Other students will have different needs and do not need this.
- That's like saying if a doctor prescribes _____ for one patient, she has to prescribe it for all patients.
- My child has a right to an individualized program, and this is an important element of that.
- Providing for this individualized program DOES NOT commit the school to providing the service to other students.
- So are you saying that my child is currently receiving the exact same services as every other child with a disability in the district?
- If the other students' IEP Teams determine that those students need the service, those decisions will not have anything to do with my child's IEP.

Statement: We don't have/need to address transition until age 16.

- Transition must be addressed and initially written into the IEP by the 16th birthday, so that means no later than during the year that my child is 15 years old.
- The regulations allow transition to be addressed earlier, as a team decision, and we parents are members of the team. We suggest the following wording ____.
- Federal regulations state: "Beginning not later than the first IEP to be in effect when the child turns 16, or younger if determined appropriate by the IEP team." How has the school reached the conclusion that my child does not need transition services prior to age 16? Please show me the information used to make this decision.

Statement: Your student tested “proficient” on the state standard assessment. If you made him do his homework, he wouldn’t be failing.

- My child can pick up the knowledge and can spit back the information to pass a test, yet he does not do daily work in the traditional manner. Is that the only way to grade my child, or can we make some accommodations?
- What strategies have you been using at school that might help us at home?
- An expected part of _____ (ADHD, Executive Function Disorder, etc.) is an inability to organize and prioritize. She has documented deficits in that area. That’s why we have an IEP or 504 Plan. Let’s update the list of accommodations.
- Deficits in planning, organization and follow-through are a manifestation of my child’s disability. What strategies can be implemented at school to accommodate for my child’s disability?

Statement: You need to have realistic expectations for your child.

- We think it is realistic for him to attend school with his peers, with appropriate supports, services, accommodations, and modifications.
- We think it is realistic for her to express and pursue her dreams, hopes, desires to reach her fullest potential, without people creating roadblocks.
- Through his experiences, let’s have my child show us his expectations for himself. We are all still trying to unlock his potential.
- We think it is realistic for my child to teach her peers something about persistence, patience, courage, faith and love, and that’s why we want her attending the local school with her same-age peers, her neighbors and friends.
- We have realistic expectations, and we also hold onto hope and dreams. Let’s find some common ground for proceeding.
- We think it is realistic for our child to learn this subject area. We just haven’t yet found the right strategy. If our child never has the opportunity to try, she will never have the opportunity to succeed.
- We should not set the bar too low. I believe this is both an appropriate and realistic expectation.

Tool: Written Notice of a Refused or Tabled Action

Parents protect their rights by making informed decisions. The “Written Notice of a Refused or Tabled Action” tool is a simple document parents can give to a school to request information they need to understand a school’s decision.

Student Name: _____ Birth Date: _____

Parent (s): _____ Date: _____

Purpose of this notice:

- An action being refused by the LEA
 An action being tabled by the LEA Date of next consideration: _____

Notice:

1. A description of the action refused [or tabled] by the local educational agency.
2. An explanation of why the local educational agency refuses to take the action [or tables it].
3. A description of any other options the IEP team considered and the reasons for the rejection of those options.
4. A description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the local educational agency used as a basis for the refused [or tabled] action.
5. A description of any other factors relevant to the local educational agency’s refusal.

(LEA Position)

IDEA (20 U.S.C. 1415(b)(3)) requires the written notice must contain;

1. A description of the action proposed or refused by the agency;
2. An explanation why the agency proposes or refuses to take the action;
3. A description of each evaluation procedure, assessment record, or report the agency used as a basis for the proposed or refused action;
4. A statement that the parents of a child with a disability have protection under the procedural safeguards of this part and, if this notice is an initial referral for evaluation, the means by which a copy of a description of the procedural safeguards can be obtained;
5. Sources for parents to contact to obtain assistance in understanding the provisions of this part (procedural safeguards);
6. A description of other options that the IEP Team considered and the reasons why those options were rejected; and
7. A description of other factors that are relevant to the agency’s proposal or refusal.

Assistive Technology

Adapted from Special Education Technology Practices.

Statement: We've considered your child's need for assistive technology (AT) and have determined that she will not benefit.

- I would like to review the documentation/evaluations that support your decision. In particular, I would like to see the data regarding performance with assistive technology and performance without.

Statement: Best Practice suggests you always begin with no-tech solutions first.

- We have already tried no-tech solutions. It is time to evaluate my child's assistive technology needs.
- Consideration should not be a linear process of trial and error. Rather, all possible solutions should be explored as quickly as possible to minimize the impact of persistent failure.
- IDEA requires that assistive technology device and service needs be considered at every IEP meeting.

Statement: We can't afford that.

- Cost cannot be considered a factor in AT consideration.

Statement: We are not sure what types of AT are out there.

- What steps will you take to fulfill the AT consideration mandate?
- Is there an individual responsible for AT in the school/district? If so, they should participate in the IEP meeting to share this information.
- If there are no individuals with knowledge of AT in the school/district, who will the school contact, and when, to provide this information to the IEP team?

Statement: It's not clear that (the student) actually does better with AT.

- I would like to see the data that supports such a conclusion. Typically, we need to review performance data over time, with and without the technology, to come to such a conclusion.

- Has my child received training in using the AT device? Have the teachers, aides or other providers received training in how to use this device with my child?

Statement: We don't want him to become dependent on a text-reader. When will he ever learn to read?

- My child doesn't have independent reading skills and expectations in grade 4 and beyond are to access large amounts of text. How will you demonstrate that he has access to the curriculum without a text reader?

Statement: You child is not the only one that struggles with this problem.

- I can appreciate your concern, but my primary interest is the success of my child. As a result, what are you going to do to ensure that my child is successful?

Statement: We will provide some specialized technology, but there is no need to write it in the IEP.

- I am pleased to hear that assistive technology will be provided. However, to ensure the rights of all parties are protected, all needed AT devices and services should be written on the IEP.

Statement: We are not authorized to make a decision about AT.

- I am disappointed to hear that. I guess we will need to adjourn the meeting until an appropriate administrator is here.

Statement: If the district provides this assistive technology device, it can not leave the school building.

- My child uses this AT device to do schoolwork. He needs to complete his homework just like any other student.
- My child does not stop communicating when she goes home.

Additional Tips When Meeting Resistance to Providing Assistive Technology

Clarify Performance Deficits and the Need for Performance Support Tools

Parents and teachers are well aware of the areas where students struggle. Therefore, define the categories of tools that are needed for an assistive technology toolkit. Some areas you might include: Communication (Oral, Written), Mobility, Visual Access, Auditory Access, Organization, Memory, Reading, Writing, Solving Problems, Note Taking, Test Taking, Homework, and Study Skills.

Focus on Performance – Not Stuff

Finding the appropriate assistive technology can produce a blinding devotion to a specific technology product. However, the key component of the definition of assistive technology is that it enhances performance. As a result, focus on issues of persistent educational failure as evidence that a student is not receiving and benefitting from FAPE. Likewise, emphasize the importance of No Child Left Behind's expectation that all students will achieve grade level standards. Request that assistive technology be provided to close the achievement gap. Don't let the technology blind you to the fact that the purpose of the technology is to enhance performance.

Collect Data

Evidence of a performance problem can be presented anecdotally using stories, using artifacts like graded papers and report cards, and with quantifiable evidence like the amount of time spent writing a report, number of words generated, number of spelling errors, etc. Struggling students may spend excessive time completing a task with the final result still being unacceptable. To make the case that assistive technology enhances performance, data will be needed that shows performance with and without technology, over time. Use data to tell the story. If possible, graph quantitative data so others can easily understand the trends.

Next Steps

There is little evidence to indicate that all students who could benefit from assistive technology have access to appropriate devices and services. When an IEP team: (a) understands the importance and value of assistive technology, (b) has technical resources to evaluate student needs and select appropriate devices, and (c) has administrative support for providing assistive technology support services, the assistive technology outcomes are noteworthy for students and their families. However, when one or more of these critical ingredients are missing, the IEP process can become a battleground regarding the provision of assistive technology. Don't give up. Continue to explore assistive technology possibilities outside of school.

South Dakota Parent Connection, Inc. serves as the state's only Parent Training and Information Center. SDPC provides resources for families of children with disabilities and special health care needs; individual assistance and workshops; connects families to programs at the state and national level; and helps parents and schools navigate the special education process, all at no cost to families.

South Dakota Advocacy Services is the state's designated Protection and Advocacy System. SDAS provides services to eligible people with disabilities ranging from information and referral to case advocacy and legal representation. SDAS consists of eight component programs, each serving a distinct population based on federal legislative mandates and program priorities.
